Speaker:

“Rethinking Urban Land Use”

This month's featured speaker is Robert Nevel, an architect, urban farmer and pioneer in the food and justice sustainability movement. He will speak on Rethinking Urban Land Use. He will address some of the basics and share some of the challenges and some of the great benefits through gardening.

Mr. Nevel sits on the Board of Advocates for Urban Agriculture and is the immediate past president of the KAM Isaiah Israel Congregation in Chicago. In 2009 Robert founded the award winning, nationally recognized, Food Justice and Sustainability Program at KAMII. The program is focused on transforming unproductive urban spaces into micro-farms and food forests, improving access to fresh food, teaching urban agriculture and sustainability skills and advocating for healthy food systems and responsible energy, land and water use. Welcome to Miller Beach, Robert! Let's hear what you have to say about gardening in Miller's urban landscape and the anticipated climate change.
